HOSPITALS

Most hospitals have mental health services which may include Psychiatric Assessments, Psychologists, Psychiatrists, Social Workers and other professionals.

Programs offered typically include:

- Outpatient programs, where one comes to the hospital for mental health services;
- Day treatment, or partial hospitalization programs, where a person comes for treatment for longer periods or more frequently, for more intensive therapy than one would receive from simply seeing an outpatient therapist or clinician;
- Inpatient programs, where a person is admitted to hospital in order to provide a high level of supervision and care until the condition improves enough so that the person can be treated as an outpatient.
